Council on the Holocaust

2023 SCCH Summer Institutes Guide

I. Foundations of Teaching the Holocaust (June 26-June 30)

II. South Carolina and the Holocaust (July 10 - July 14)

Key Benefits

- Teachers can earn 3 graduate credit hours from USC for each course and the cost of each course for each teacher will be covered by the SCCH.
- Teachers will receive hands-on training in content, pedagogy, and methodology.
- Additionally, participating teachers will also receive books and resources to use in their classroom.

Course Descriptions

I. Foundations of Teaching the Holocaust

This course is intended for K-12 teachers, and other education stakeholders, seeking increased knowledge of teaching and learning about the Holocaust as well as deepening pedagogical understanding of inquiry based approaches in Holocaust education. During the course, participants will examine what actions were necessary on the part of individuals (ordinary citizens, military officers, teachers, clergy, and so on) to enact and maintain a system that killed millions of Jews and others. The workshop also examines South Carolina-related resources, and different teaching methodologies (i.e., oral testimonies, historical inquiry, literature, and primary sources).

This course is useful for all teachers, most notably for those who are new to teaching the Holocaust and/or those who wish to have a firm understanding of both the context of the event and how to approach teaching it in the classroom.

II. Advanced Topics: South Carolina and the Holocaust

The intent of our advanced coursework is to immerse participants in viewing the Holocaust from unique angles that are often less deliberately explored by teachers in order to give them a more nuanced understanding of the Holocaust. This specific course is designed as an advanced study of the Holocaust from the lens of South Carolina.

While the participants will engage in learning about the overall context of the Holocaust they will do so with the perspective of South Carolina at the forefront. They will come to understand what South Carolina citizens knew or did not know about the Holocaust, how they reacted to it, and the context that influenced their opinions and perceptions of the event. Additionally, participants will examine the impact that the displacement of Holocaust survivors had on South Carolina as a notable number of survivors chose to relocate from Europe to South Carolina to start a new life.

It is important to recognize that participants do not need to have a strong background in South Carolina history to participate in this course. All levels and subject area teachers will find the content of the course engaging and the lessons taught to be transferable to a wide range of classrooms and students.

This course is open to all K-12 teachers and educational stakeholders. It is highly recommended, but not required, that participants have already taken the Foundations of Teaching the Holocaust course or other related significant coursework in understanding the Holocaust offered by the SCCH or another qualified Holocaust education organization or higher ed institution.

Course Elements

- Each course will require the completion of online lessons about Holocaust history to be completed before the workshop.
- In-person classroom instruction will be in Columbia, SC on the dates indicated for each course.
- Several classroom assignments and a final project are due to the instructor within a few weeks following the conclusion of the course.

Participants must complete all three segments, including attending all sessions on the days of the course, to receive graduate credit.

Eligibility Requirements

Each course is limited to SC-certified teachers who are residents of South Carolina and have a current teaching contract with a school in South Carolina. Pre-service teachers may be considered with the permission of the executive director if there is space available. Each course is capped at 25 teachers.

Credit

Three hours of graduate credit will be awarded from the UofSC School of Education upon successful completion of all the aforementioned elements of each course. All course participants will be expected to complete all elements of each course.

Location, Lodging, and Meals

The course will be held in Columbia, SC. This meeting space will accommodate any social distancing or Covid protocols as directed by the guidelines established by the university.

Four nights of lodging (Monday through Thursday nights) will be provided at a nearby hotel for teachers traveling from more than 40 miles outside of Columbia, SC. You must specify on your registration application to the SCCH that you need housing.

The Council will provide lunches during the days of the institute. Light refreshments will be available in the morning. However, dinners will be the responsibility of the participants. No additional travel stipend will be provided.

Cost

Each course is limited to 25 participants. A registration fee of $50.00 is due to the SCCH to secure your position in a course by April 15, 2022. (The registration fee increases to $100 for those who apply after April 15.)*

Additionally, an application fee will be charged separately by the university. If you have registered with UofSC within the previous 3 years then that fee can be waived.

The registration fee and the application fee will be refunded to the participant after the successful completion of all elements of the course. The remaining costs, including for graduate credit, are underwritten by the South Carolina Council on the Holocaust.

*The registration fee will not be deposited if you are not chosen to participate in the institute(s).
